

THE MANTLE OF LEADERSHIP

The Voice from the Pavement - Peter Adamis 11 February 2013

What leadership and cultural policies have Australian Hellenic communities have in place to transfer the knowledge of the past. What programs if any are in operation that prepares the youth of today to meet the challenges of the Australian Hellenic community. How does the Australian Hellenic community selects its leaders from amongst its community.

Why occupations do our leaders in the Australian Hellenic community possess. Are they qualified and have the skills. Should the new generation push them out gently or conduct a coup.

How many of our leaders possess the drive energy, passion and ambition to embrace the present and move forward with the confidence to retain the best of two cultures. Do women make better leaders than men.

If so why. When should the youth take on the mantle of leadership and at what age do they possess the necessary maturity and intelligence to be a leader. What programs should we put into place to ensure that transfer the mantle of leadership and contribute to the well being of Australia in other ways.

In doing so would be bringing pride, recognition and acknowledgement that Australians of Hellenic origins have what it takes to be leaders. Questions that need answers if not then what course action is required. Consider the alternatives.

The Voice from the Pavement - Peter Adamis is a (not for profit) Journalist/Commentator. He is a retired Australian military serviceman and an Industry organisational & Occupational (OHS) & Training Consultant whose interests are within the parameters of domestic and international political spectrum. He is an avid blogger and contributes to domestic and international community news media outlets as well as to local and Ethnic News. He holds a Bachelor of Adult Learning & Development (Monash), Grad Dip Occupational Health & Safety, (Monash), Dip. Training & Assessment, Dip Public Administration, and Dip Frontline Management. Contact via Email: abalinx@netspace.net.au or via Mobile: 0409965538