

Abalinx 24 March 2018 Peter Adamis

Welcome to the first of a series of Liberal Victoria political articles that may be of interest to subscribers and visitors alike. The aim of the series to encourage members, subscribers and visitors alike to contribute to the State of Victoria and return it to its former glory. This is a personal attempt on my part and my final tribute to the Liberal Party as a non-active member. It is the third time that I have come out of retirement to assist in whatever capacity I can using my own resources. I have never asked nor received any funding for such campaigns as I am a great believer in the Aussie give and take and being tolerant with others who have follow a different ideology and outlook on life.

Interested members may access the Victorian Liberals Data base of Articles that will soon be populated over the next few months. Subscribers and visitors alike with non-political articles as they would be linked to the subscribers list to receive articles associated with Abalinx and Associates. Briefly speaking, Abalinx and Associates is a not for profit social media network that has been in operation since 2004. It is a network of likeminded individuals that mentors, develops and enhances people's lives. All of those involved do so on a not for cost basis of which a simple thank you is the only acknowledgement they receive. Those who have the time may visit the Abalinx About page to obtain a better understanding what Abalinx is all about Political articles from previous editions can also be viewed by visiting the Political section on Abalinx. Articles regarding Matthew Guy may be viewed by visiting the section, Victorian Election 2018.

Readers may leave comments on each of the articles as long as the language used is in accordance with Abalinx and Associates policies that are found in the Abalinx About page. All inappropriate language will be removed and members removed from subscribing after one word of caution. Aussie humour that only Australians can understand is acceptable. Derogatory language crafted in such a manner that is demeaning may be removed if the direction and meaning of the penmanship is inappropriately crafted. Constructive criticism is most welcome and I take this opportunity to apologise in advance for any errors of grammar, spelling mistakes and mutilation of the English language.

After a two year absence, never in my wildest dreams did I envisage returning to the political arena. Cancer can be a dreadful disease and if one does not have a positive outlook on life, they might as well buy a spade and dig their own grave.

This is the third time I have returned back and hopefully it will be my last contribution to the Liberal party. A party which I have followed for the past 50 years.

Apart from being in remission, I have returned because I honestly believe in generational change and feel that the Liberal Party is nearing the generational crossroads. I give our party a mere two years for the transition to occur. Any later and we will be stuck with a paradigm culture that is no longer relevant.

We as Liberals must be forward thinking and be prepared to take risks in order to meet the challenges of the future whatever they may be.

It has been my experience that during any election year, differences amongst the factions are put aside in order to win government. However despite moving forward and embracing new and emerging technologies, some of us have clung to the paradigms of a bygone era not willing to see what is on the other side of the hill, so to speak. I must confess that despite my love of change and of new technologies, I too have occasionally fallen into the depths of comfort and complacency. I returned back from treatment after some seven months of recuperation hoping that all was well on the political scene and that the factions had finally reconciled and were working with Matthew Guy, the Opposition leader and Michael Kroger, President of the Liberal Party. Unfortunately I was in for a rude awakening.

I find that individuals have gone off on a trip of their own, not following protocols, the constitution, leaking information, creating new faction groups, attempting to manipulate members, threats and intimidation, illegal email correspondence being distributed to members from the Administrative Committee, infighting, accusations, character assassination's and so forth. Therefore over the next few months I intend to write on subjects that may be of interest to members. This shall be my final contribution towards the Liberal party.
